Underwater adventure

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — es, it is entirely possible for Madison County, from the bluffs to the Mississippi, to end up under water. "I know I'm a screaming alarmist," Shang Greathouse, president of the Metro East Sanitary District, said. "I'm not sure I really like that role, but what does it take to get people to listen?"

He is strongly urging "Yes" votes Feb. 28 as the key to a five-year $31 million flood protection project, to be carried out by the Engineer Corps and funded mainly by the federal government.

Greathouse had his engineer draw up maps showing what areas would be underwater if specific pump stations could not be operated while the river was at the 36-foot flood stage. In a normal year, Greathouse said, the river reaches 36 feet about six times.

All the experts who look at the maps disagree somewhat with the boundaries; they said flooding would cover even larger areas than the MESD lines indicate.

"Well, I told him not to exaggerate anything," Greathouse said. "Just put in what he was absolutely sure about."

Should a pump station fail, flooding definitely would not be limited to the area shown on the maps, Greathouse said, but the areas shown would be completely covered.

•If the North Pump Station fails, the Interstate 55/70 interchange with Illinois 203 would be underwater. In fact, I-55-70 would be almost completely underwater well past Monks' Mound.

•If the Madison Pump Station failed, most of Venice and Madison, parts of Granite City and the whole Army Depot would be underwater, he said.

•If the Venice Pump Station fails, most of Venice would go under.

Overall, however, Madison County gets off lightly, if you consider such extensive flooding as light.

If the East St. Louis Pump Station failed, water would cover the city all the way to North Dupo. And no matter what pump sta-

AREAS UNDERWATER if the Metro East Sanitary District pump stations fail are shown in blue. All of the colored area would be covered if the Madison Pump Station failed. The darker blue shows the area that would be covered if only the Venice Pump Station failed. The projected areas are based on the river at 36 feet, a level it reaches a half dozen times in a normal year. Actual flooding would probably occur in a much greater area, but the colored area would remain underwater, an MESD study shows.

Lady Warriors Win

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City Lady Warriors won the first girls basketball regional in the school's history Wednesday with a 54-46 win over the East St. Louis Flyers at Memorial Gymnasium.

Junior center Jennifer Cavness scored 27 points as the Lady Warriors (10-12) advanced to next week's Highland Class

AA Sectional. They will face Jerseyville (25-1) on Monday in Highland at 8 p.m.

"We couldn't look too far ahead," said coach John Hutchings.

"The girls knew they could do it. And we finally did the things we are capable of doing. They deserved it."

Further details on the win appear in Sports, Page 1D.

Granite schools set longer Spring break

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Spring break just got a little bigger. District 9 students and staff will be getting an entire week of Easter vacation.

Originally, classes were scheduled for Monday, March 20 resulting from scheduling arrangements made at the end of the faculty strike in September. Classes will resume March 27.

At the request of employee bargaining units, including Federation of Teachers Local 743, its Secretary Council, and Service Employees Union Local 98, the school board voted Tuesday night to exchange the March 20 date for Tuesday, June 6.

"From the very beginning we did not want students to suffer any serious consequences of the strike," Superintendent Gib

Walmesley said. "This will help many families who are going on vacation."

Previously, the last day of school was to be June 5. Now that day will be the last full day of classes and June 6 will be a shortened day and the official last day of the spring term.

Jolene Terrell, board president, was concerned that the swap would violate state guidelines by both changing the calendar and making June 6 a half-day.

"The state allows such deviation from normal schedules on the first and last days of school," Walmesley said.

Walmesley further explained that the unions' agreement to "waive any extra or additional pay for this change in the school calendar" was merely a technicality.

Township pay raises approved

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City Town Board, composed of the aldermen and the mayor, voted 9-2 Tuesday to increase the pay of the township supervisor and the township assessor.

The new annual salaries, which will take effect following the April election, are $35,000 for the assessor and $17,500 for the supervisor. Two years later, the assessor's salary will rise to $37,000 and the supervisor's to $18,500.

Both Supervisor Nellie Hagman and Assessor Darlene Laub are unopposed for re-election.

First Ward Alderman Casmer Skubish said he was against the Wolf introduces bill requesting BAC redistricting be postponed

By Rick Arnold
Staff affiliate

BELLEVEILLE — Three Belleville Area College board members whose terms were scheduled to end this November may have their terms extended another two years.

State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, has introduced a bill in the Illinois General Assembly that would postpone the redistricting of the BAC district until 1991. Voters have approved electing one member from each of seven subdistricts, rather than seven members districtwide.

Wolf said passage of the proposed new law would allow the State Board of Elections to use 1990 census data when drawing the boundary lines for the seven areas. If the boundaries were drawn now, they would have to be redrawn a year later, he said.

Wolf said he's confident the bill will pass. "I've talked to legislators who serve the college district and they are in favor of it," Wolf said. He expects the General Assembly to vote on the bill sometime in March.

The postponement would cancel the November 1989 trustee election. The terms of trustees Bob

Maynard Ferguson appearing here

GRANITE CITY — On Feb. 21, the High School Band Parents and Band will sponsor a concert by jazz and trumpet great Maynard Ferguson at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The concert will include the playing of the "Rocky" theme — with the GCHS Jazz Band as Maynard's guest on stage.

Ticket prices are $10 in advance and $12 at the door. Tickets are now available by contacting Dennis Meyer at Granite City High School, 3101 Madison Ave., Granite City 62040.

Ferguson began his musical career at the age of 11 when he played a solo with the Canadian Broadcasting Co. From there he enrolled in the French Conservatory of Music to receive formal training on the trumpet.

He had his own jazz band at the age of 16. All the players were twice his age except his brother, Percy. By 1948, Ferguson had made his debut in the U.S. in Boyd Raeburn's band.

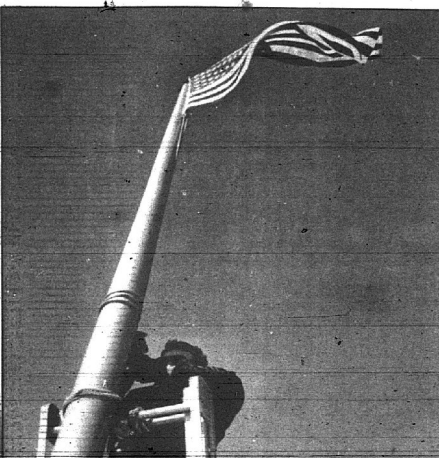

In the 1950s, he played with Charlie Barnet and Jimmy Dorsey. He impressed the jazz world with his high trumpet blasts for years in the Stan Kenton band. After Kenton, he had movie soundtracks for Paramount.

Guesting with symphony conductor Leonard Bernstein in 1955, Ferguson performed "The Titans" by William Russo, with the New York Philharmonic.

After the studio trumpet period in his life, Ferguson embarked on a career as a band leader. For almost 30 years, Ferguson has fronted jazz big bands of varying instrumentation and personnel. In 1976, he played for the closing ceremonies of the Olympics in his native Canada. In 1978, he hit the pop charts with a rendition of the title theme from "Rocky."

Now Ferguson leads a seven-piece jazz group called "High Voltage." This is the group that will be featured at Granite City High School on Feb. 21.

MEGSI may get additional federal funding

SPRINGFIELD — The Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois may get federal money this year to fight illegal drug trafficking under plans approved by a state agency.

The Illinois Criminal Justice Information Agency has approved tentative plans for spending $4.8 million in federal funds to fight drug abuse and violent crime, said spokesman Kevin Morrison.

The budget includes $700,000 for the state's 19 metropolitan enforcement groups to expand their efforts.

Morrison said MEGSI is eligible for the money but must obtain matching funds to receive the grant.

MEGSI officials should know by late spring or early summer if they will get some of the money, he said.

The agency awarded $600,000 to MEGSI last June, Morrison noted. MEGSI is made up of law enforcement agencies from Jersey, Madison and St. Clair counties.

With the money, the enforcement groups this year will be able to expand their service areas, add equipment or personnel, and attack drug problems in their areas, Morrison said.

After the U.S. Justice Department reviews and the public comments on the tentative spending plan, the agency will open negotiations in April with state law enforcement agencies eligible for funding, he said.

The agency also has appropriated $300,000 for expanding programs at the state police crime laboratories, including the one at Collinsville, and the agency will fund new programs for getting information needed to identify and arrest violent criminals.

Law enforcement agencies outside of the Chicago area may get some of those funds, Morrison said.

The agency also earmarked $200,000 to be spent outside Cook County on supervision services for drug-abusing offenders.

Turner's auto struck a guard rail and slid about 400 feet, a report said. He was charged with failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Angela Parris of the 980 block of Madison Avenue had pulled to a stop sign at Second Street and Madison Avenue when she heard a loud noise and the right front window in her car was shot out, she reported at 8:40 p.m. Jan. 27.

Disturbance ends in arrest of two persons

Called to a reported disturbance at Kramden's Bar and Grill in the 1300 block of Madison Avenue at 1:10 a.m. Jan. 31, an officer was asked to remove three men who allegedly were involved.

All three were escorted outside and told to leave the area and not return, he said; one of the men complied.

The other two, identified as Robert J. Schall, 32, of the 980 block of Lee Avenue, Madison, and Darrell Craig Elmore, 23, of the 1500 block of Joy Avenue, Granite City, allegedly began walking toward the lounge's entrance door and were charged with disobeying a police officer.

At police headquarters, Schall was further charged with resisting arrest. He was released after posting $100 bail, and a March 4 appearance was scheduled for the Granite City court. Elmore was released on a notice to appear on March 4.

One man among a group of youths standing there displayed a gun and told him to get out of town, Kayich said. While driving away, Kayich heard a loud noise but found no damage to his vehicle.

Man is cut on throat

Steve Stinson of Grenzer Homes said that while he was working on his car on Jan. 21, a man drove up and started arguing and cursing him. He told the man that he didn't want to hear it and the man moved behind him, saying, "I'll cut your throat" and did so. Stinson sustained a laceration to the right side of the neck.

Auto window damaged

Ron Lee Reed, 29, of Grenzer Homes was charged with criminal damage to property when arrested Jan. 31. He was released, pending a March 3 appearance in the Granite City court. Lolita Davis of Grenzer Homes alleged she was attempting to leave an address in the 1500 block of Market Street when an argument with Reed occurred. Reed allegedly pulled on a door window of her car, shattering the glass.

The driver was halted after a report was received by Madison police from a Madison County officer who alleged seeing the vehicle being driven erratically on Illinois 203 near Granite City Steel.

David C. Catterson was charged with driving while his license was suspended and illegal transportation of alcohol. He was transferred Feb. 1 to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville.

Two passengers in the car, Larry Wayne Catterson, 29, of the 2000 block of Washington Avenue and Ruth A. Davault, 48, of the 2800 block of Warren Avenue were charged with illegal possession of alcohol.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Gary Goldberg

For a touch of the Old World in your apple pie, roll out a circle of marzipan (it comes in a 7-ounce tube) and lay it on the bottom crust, before the fruit goes in. Tastes best with a tart apple.

Cheese is less likely to get stringy if you melt it over low heat. Shred cheeses first for best results.

Here's a shortcut for making biscuits instead of rolling out the dough and cutting circles. For the dough into a two-inch diameter log and cut into half-inch slices.

For sensational flavor, zip up vinaigrette dressing with a puree of roasted red pepper (jar the pepper, let steam in a plastic bag, then peel and remove seeds and fibrous bits).

Did you know you can cook vegetables in the oven, along with your roast? A platter of thin-sliced zucchini and tomatoes (overlapping, and one layer thick) drizzled with oil and sparsely with basil, takes ten minutes in a 400° oven, a little longer at 350°.

No regular residential or business deliveries will be made on this holiday.

The self-service postal center at the main post office in Granite City is open around-the-clock. This center has stamps, postal cards, stamped envelopes, and currency changing machines.

Express mail, the expedited mail service, as well as special delivery mail will be delivered.

The airport mail facility, 9855 Air Cargo Road, just east of the Seminar on alcohol, drug co-dependency

Recognizing that alcoholism and drug dependency are diseases that not only affect the dependent person but the entire family, the Edgewood Program at Edwardsville is sponsoring a workshop on the implications of co-dependency.

The workshop, set for Tuesday, Feb. 21, is designed for today's nurse, and will meet at Edgewood-Edwardsville, 1121 University Drive in Edwardsville, across from the main entrance to SIUE. Participants can earn 7.5 contact hours in continuing education units.

"Co-dependency is now coming into its own area of concern because of the physical, social, psychological and spiritual impact it has on the family," said Jo Anne Roberson, acute-care supervisor of Edgewood-Edwardsville.

"Statistically, many children of alcoholics/drug dependents become chemically dependent and/or develop serious problems adjusting to life."

At the workshop, participants will:

- Explore the dynamics of co-dependency;

- Learn about the medical aspects of the disease;

- Review the grieving process as it relates to children of alcoholics;

- Learn how adult children of alcoholics relate in the workplace;

- Develop the skills to intervene with individuals showing manifestations of co-dependency.

The agenda includes talks, discussions, and films.

In addition to Roberson, the workshop will feature the following speakers: James Lane, M.Ed.; Lawrence Harmon, M.D.; Kathy McCall, M.S.Ed.; Pattie Ellfrink, C.S.A.C.; Patty Finley, community coordinator; Colleen Cameron, C.A.C.; and Barbara Muentnich, R.N., Ed.D.

Because workshop attendance is limited, immediate pre-registration is advised. Cost of the workshop is $15, which includes lunch. The program will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m.

For more information, Jo Anne Roberson can be called at 798-3012 or 656-6730.

Adopt-a-pet day set Feb. 11

The Madison County Humane Society will hold an adopt-a-pet day Saturday, Feb. 11, at Kritter Korner, 229 N. Main St., Edwardsville.

Adoptions are held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Many cats, kittens, puppies and dogs of all sizes and breeds are available. Fees are $20 for each cat and $37 for each dog.

Some animals have been neutered or spayed, and all have been inoculated and wormed.

Proverbs 29:18 "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Our vision must first of all include us! We must believe that God is for us. All things work together for the good of us. Once we get the vision of God's ability and desire to give us abundant life, we cannot wait to pass the message on. What God does for us he will do for others! What happens? Souls get saved. Bodies get healed. Believers are filled with the Spirit. The move is on, we have a vision!

After two decades in the Ministry, I can say there are no secrets to the divine flow of God's Spirit. God's people are a faith people. We believe what we do not see. Our faith brings to pass what our spirits can conceive. Jesus said, "All things are possible to him that believeth." We must have a vision of God's ability. It is God who can do all things.

Lord, help us to have a vision of your ability. Today!

A very special week

Looking back at Catholic Schools Week in four local parochial institutions.

SCHOOL CARNIVAL: Former St. Mary-St. Mark School student Richard Jackson prepares to take a shot at the "Frogger" game booth Friday in Engelbert Hall in Madison. A variety of games of skill and chance as well as face painting was available for students and the public.

FIRST-PLACE ENTRY: Ryan Szymarek, a sixth-grade student at Holy Family School, makes the final adjustments on his radio-controlled airplane that tied for first place in his grade division last week in a science project contest. Keith Miller, who made a working model of a dam, shared the honor.

Kids get scientific lesson

Among the activities during Catholic Schools Week, Jan. 29-Feb. 5, was a science fair held at Holy Family School in Granite City.

Students in grades six through eight got a chance to show off both their scientific knowledge and creative flair.

The event was coordinated by seventh grade teacher Diana Prazma.

Sixth grade winners were: Keith Miller and Ryan Szymarek, first place; Tom Cupples and Ron York, second place; Suzanne Lerch, Jill Hellrich and Keith Seiz, third place.

Seventh grade winners were: Chris Kult, first place; Misty Rogan and Nicole Zelenka, second place; Jenny Trtanj and Joann Webb, third place.

Joann Webb, third place.

Eighth grade winners were: Chrissy Hoffman, Jack Carmody and Philip Reznack, first place; Christina Dickerman, Kris Walch, Cathy Schzenhofer and Anne Hewlett, second place; Adam Barr and Mike Brimberry, third place.

St. Dominic Savio Club wins award ...again

GRANITE CITY — What better way to celebrate Catholic Schools Week than to learn you've won a national award for the second straight year? Members of the St. Dominic-Savio Club at Holy Family School still haven't come back down to earth.

"The group — fifth graders at the school — learned two weeks ago that it had won first place in a national Christmas caroling contest. The pupils had entered a 15-minute recording of a series of Christmas songs many weeks ago, said the sponsor, Sr. Mary Stanley.

Making the achievement even more notable is the fact that the club has only been in existence for three years and has entered the caroling contest just the last two years, winning first both times.

The club is named for Dominic Savio, an altar boy who died at the age of 14 in 1856 and was known for good deeds and Christian attitude. He was designated a Catholic saint in 1950, and the clubs that have been formed in his name have come to be known for character building, leadership and public service programs for youth.

Sr. Mary Stanley was instrumental in establishing the club at Holy Family. "I felt that it was a great motivation to the kids to study, develop leadership and exert, as we say, positive peer pressure."

The first year the award was won, the honor went to Sacred Heart/Saint Joseph's School, which later merged with St.

BASKING IN THEIR WIN are members of the St. Dominic Savio Club at Holy Family School. Sponsor Sr. Mary Stanley.

Margaret Mary School to form Holy Family. Dan Vizer, the music teacher at Holy Family, said the kids look at the club as a positive influence. "The fifth grade is kind of a pivot year when so many kids can choose to go wrong. These kids always seem to go right."

Individually their musical ability isn't much different than most fifth graders, but as a group, the harmony is most impressive, he said. They practiced caroling for about four to six weeks prior to recording the contest tape.

The members are active in the community, doing such things as visiting St. Elizabeth Medical Center patients and giving them handmade gifts.

Music seems to be their strong point these days, however.

Vizer said Sr. Mary Stanley once told the students that in order to register with audience members the choir had "to make them cry." At one recent appearance at a St. Louis military gathering, the children did just that. A colonel was moved to tears, Vizer said.

The 36 kids in the fifth grade have a long time left in their lives, and what they learn now will help determine the course of those lives, Sr. Mary Stanley is convinced.

If they learn nothing else, the St. Dominic Savio club members do learn to "feel compassion for all people," she said.

Beatlemania hit big 25 years ago tonight

For those old enough to remember — and I'm not among that group — 25 years ago tonight was something just a little special.

It was on Feb. 9, 1964, that Ed Sullivan introduced to America four young men from Liverpool, England, whose music captivated — and changed — the world. The Beatles had just completed a record-setting year in their home country with five smash singles and two million-selling albums. But it was on this night that they truly hit it big as millions of Americans got their first real look at the band.

It was as big as Elvis Presley's appearance on the Sullivan show a few years before. Teen-age girls in the audience and in homes nationwide screamed their lungs out. Many of them didn't know why. They just knew the person next to them was doing it, too.

But there was plenty to scream about. Anyone who had known John Winston Lennon and James Paul McCartney as teen-agers would never have guessed that they would strike up any kind of relationship. Lennon was a fatherless troublemaker, forever getting in all kinds of scrapes at school. McCartney was extremely well-behaved and eager to please his elders.

They met at a church festival where Lennon's band, the Quarrymen, was entertaining. Within a week, McCartney was a member of the band. Together, this odd couple penned the soundtrack of a generation.

As good as they were 25 years ago tonight, they got better in the dizzying years to follow. Of all the books written about the Beatles, perhaps the most fascinating is a recent release by Mark Levinson detailing every recording session the band ever had, starting with their tryout for producer George Martin in June 1962 right up until the completion of Let It Be in early 1970. They started out knowing next to nothing about recording music, and that was what made them the best. They would try anything because they didn't know any better.

Although George Harrison, Ringo Starr and certainly McCartney came up with many innovative ideas, it was Lennon who led the way. He is viewed as brilliant today, although he certainly must have appeared mad to some back then. Lennon would do anything to get a new sound. He would sing while lying on the floor; he would sing with the microphone set up behind his back wrapped in a towel.

The making of two songs stands out in Lennon's book: "Strawberry Fields Forever" was originally a very simple song. It was recorded fairly straightforwardly, but Lennon didn't like it. So it was recorded again at a different tempo, with more drums and brass added. John didn't like that one, either.

So he asked Martin if the two versions could be combined. Martin said that would be hard because the two versions were in different pitches and tempos. John told Martin that he was sure the veteran producer could fix it. Now if you listen hard, you can hear where the two versions are combined about a minute into the song, which is one of the most successful Beatle recordings ever.

For "I Am the Walrus," Lennon was looking for sounds — any kinds of sounds — to play as the song faded at the end. One night, he turned on a radio in the studio and just recorded what was coming over the air. If you listen to the song now, you can hear portions of the Sept. 26, 1967, BBC radio broadcast of Shakespeare's "King Lear" in the fadeout of "I Am the Walrus."

Crazy? Maybe. Brilliant? Probably. Successful? Unquestionably.

The Beatles had stopped touring in 1966 because they were serious musicians who were tired and didn't like the fact that people came to their concerts just to scream and not to listen. But the tours stopped also because their music was getting harder and harder to hear on stage — that is, unless someone brought a radio and turned on "King Lear."

By 1967 when both of the above songs were recorded, the Beatles were a worldwide phenomenon of unprecedented proportions. Almost anything they tried would be accepted. They got lucky on a lot of things. But mostly, they were good. Very, very good.

And what was seen 25 years ago tonight, as good as that was, was only the beginning.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes fathers contact this office and inquire about the possibility of reducing their child support obligation. In some cases, these men were not represented by an attorney at the time of the original divorce. They frequently indicate that they merely agreed to a sum of child support without considering what they could afford. Several months later, many fathers in this situation realize they are paying more than other men in similar circumstances. They then inquire about a possible reduction in support.

How does a father know if the amount of child support he agreed to excessive? Illinois law provides that the Court shall determine the minimum amount of support by using certain guidelines. A father with one child is to pay a minimum of 20% of his net income toward child support. Two children will require a minimum of 25% of the supporting party's net income.

It should be noted, however, that just because a supporting spouse entered into a bad agreement at the time of the divorce does not necessarily mean that he can subsequently have the amount of support reduced. In order for a supporting party to modify child support, he or she must show a substantial change in circumstances. A father who feels he is paying too much support would have to show that he is making less money or his ex-wife is making substantially more. He also could attempt to show that the needs of the child were not as great as they were previously.

Recently a man came to this office one year after he was divorced. He indicated that at the time the marriage was dissolved, he never consulted with his own attorney. His former wife convinced him to agree to child support which was 33% higher than the minimum standards provided by the guidelines. He inquired about the possibility of seeking a reduction in child support.

In this particular case, the man was actually making more than he had been at the time of the dissolution of the marriage. His former wife was making about the same amount of money, and the needs of the child had actually increased in the intervening year. In this case, the prospects of the father obtaining a reduction in child support were very remote. This is a case where there had not been a substantial change in circumstances since the dissolution of marriage.

•BAC—

Dintelmann said the term extensions would be unprecedented. In 1983, the terms for community college trustees statewide were extended from three years to six years, he said.

In the November 1988 election, residents of the community college district, which encompasses all or parts of seven counties, approved a referendum that would divide the 2,100-square-mile district into seven areas of approximately equal population. One trustee will be elected from each new subdistrict.

Wolf and St. Clair County Board member Frank Boyne, D-Belleview, led a petition drive to get the referendum on the ballot. They said they felt redistricting was necessary in order to correct a lack of representation of non-St. Clair County residents on the BAC board.

Currently, all seven trustees live in the same county. Five of them live in Bellevue. The board has been anxious to obtain wider representation on the board, which was passed, Wolf said.

Although redistricting backers have been anxious to obtain wider representation on the board, which was passed, Wolf said.

•Flood—

None of the pump stations is in great shape. They are rated from "inspecting up" to "falling apart" in inspection reports.

Greathouse shows off his maps every chance he gets. He is willing to talk to anyone about MESD problems and he says there are many. Keeping the MESD alive is a hopeless battle, Greathouse said, unless the tax increase and renovation program receive public approval Feb. 28.

"I'm 67 years old and why should I care. I'll be dead before the money does any good. When I got this place, it was a complete disaster and even if I've had to use bailing wire I've held it together."

"Maybe I'm dumb, I'm just a high school boy. Maybe I'll be smarter I'd golf in the afternoons or go for a drink or kick back and just collect a check."

"I'm going to do the right thing. A smarter person might say, 'Let them drown — I'll be rotting underground.' But I can't do that."

"I guess I'm just dumb enough to do the job."

•Raises—

(Continued from Page 1A) raises and that he thought local governments should follow the national example. Federal pay raises were rejected Tuesday.

"We cannot keep making these wild raises without justification," he said.

Third Ward Alderman Brett Hanke disagreed with Skubish. "I don't consider 6 percent to be a wild raise," Hanke said. "This amounts to 3 percent raises when inflation is 4 percent a year."

Opposed were Skubish and Sharon Perkin. Favoring the raises were Hanke, Jim Miller, Pat Schuman, Dan Partney, Lloyd Bailey, Judy Whitaker, Jeff Worthen, Emerald Dawes and Mayor Von Dee Cruse. Those absent were Walter Milton, Ralph Astorian, Paul Fisk and Everett Morlin.

Congratulations to Stephanie Brandt and Kim Finazzo who competed Jan. 21 in the Elks National Free Throw "Hoop Shoot" contest held at the Grigsby Junior High School. In the 10- and 11-year-old division, Stephanie placed first and Kim placed second.

Girl Scout Troop 27, under the leadership of Angie McGlawn, conducted the flag ceremony at the Mitchell PTA meeting on Jan. 12.

Those participating were: Sara Buxter, Natalie Borowski, Lindsey Crook, Kim Ebrecht, Alaina Porys, Amanda Isbrecht, Crystal McGlawn, Emily Richardson, Shena Scrum and Nicole Voss.

Sixth-grade students Kelly Ahlers and Michelle Cox captured the honor of "Student of the Week" at Mitchell School this week. Both girls showed enthusiasm and responsibility for their school work and behavioral patterns.

A 50th wedding anniversary celebration was hosted by the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Presley of Granite City. The Chouteau Social Center, decorated by the Presley's daughters, was done in soft pinks, repeated in the anniversary cake and the arch of flowers that decorated the entry to the head table.

The head table was arranged in a horseshoe shape and was covered with draped white skirts. The honorees were seated before the arch and were surrounded by their children and the children's spouses.

Following a banquet dinner, the couple renewed their wedding vows. Their son-in-law, the Rev. Jim McNeely, performed the ceremony. After a toast to the honorees, their daughter, Carol McNeely, and their granddaughter, Cindy Edgerly, sang for them.

Daughter Sue Battreal was acting master of ceremonies, and each of the children took a turn at the microphone to reveal a story of a particular incident that they remembered from their childhood.

On Jan. 16, the couple was joined by several family members for dinner. They opened gifts and enjoyed watching a video tape of the anniversary celebration.

About 200 guests were in attendance, including several from out of town. Guests included: Mrs. Presley's two brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Perry, all both of Bertrand, Mo.; and her sister, Gayle Carr, and husband, Bill, of Granite City.

Other out-of-town guests were:

Al Perry of Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Gary Perry of St. Charles, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry McNeely of Marine, Ill.; Tim Robinson, Billye Hume, Jack Lindsey, and Mr. and Mrs. Al Starick, all of St. Peters, Mo.; Vella Pearl and Wilson Tidwell, both of Sikeston, Mo.; Joyce Shaffner of Beaumont, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Tidwell of Fairview Heights; Mr. and Mrs. Greg Tinsley of Mehlville, Mo.; the Rev. and Mrs. Clint Brame of Staunton, Ill.; Dr. and Mrs. Don Edgerly and daughters, Paula and Donna, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gonzalez and children, Melissa and Devan, all of Jacksonville, Fla.

Wallpaper borders can add a note of color and pattern to a room. They're elegant on simple paper or even on a plain painted wall.

If brass tables or lamps are plated rather than solid, no amount of polishing will bring back the gleam when the finish wears off. Here's how to test: hold a magnet against the metal; real brass has no attraction, but base metal containing steel does.

"Remodel" a kitchen with color and light. A small, dingy space can be opened up with almond paint on wood cabinets, almond tiles on walls, and track lighting to show it all.

If a shade doesn't roll back as it should, perhaps the spring tension needs tightening. Pull the shade all the way down, lift it out of its brackets, then roll it up by hand and replace it at the window.

SEMC services index in works

GRANITE CITY — Members of the community will soon have immediate access to information on educational services provided by St. Elizabeth Medical Center, after a formal index is compiled by the SEMC Educational Resources Department.

Donna Fisher, director of Education Resources, believes the index will benefit both SEMC associates and members of the community.

"There will be fewer situations where the public reaches dead-ends in finding a particular program," said Fisher.

She also believes the new index will help SEMC departments work together in providing educational services. There will be less duplication of efforts, she said, which will provide more accurate information to the staff, patients and community.

Pay plan proves painful

Nobody disagrees that the 51 percent federal pay raise plan was too large and that its handling was bungled by House Speaker Jim Wright. His predecessor, Tip O'Neill, had achieved smaller raises with less public outcry. But on Tuesday, raises for congressmen, senators, federal judges and high administrative officials were rejected 380-48 in the House and 94-6 in the Senate.

Although the amount of the raise was a major issue, its symbolism also was a big element in citizens' displeasure. Unless the federal government solves its deficit problem, there could be a horrendous impact on the nation's current prosperity. Just how serious are legislators about finding a solution?

The raise itself might be regarded as just "a drop in the bucket," but its ripple effect on other federal salaries would have resulted in added billions of dollars of spending — money that isn't really there.

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois voiced another valid point in January: The raise would remove "members of Congress a little farther from the pains and struggles of the average citizen. As salaries go up, fewer and fewer members of Congress have to struggle to meet car payments or mortgage payments, and fewer have to sweat to get their children through college.

"Combine that removal from reality with our corrupting system of campaign financing, and it becomes less and less likely that Congress will respond to the needs of the least fortunate among us."

There undoubtedly are exceptions to the rule. Lawmakers with big families who must commute long distances while maintaining homes in their district and in Washington. Some may find it hard to make ends meet; Washington is an expensive place to live. On the other hand, legislators receive many free or reduced-price services. And there is the often-repeated fact that they knew what the salary was when they ran for the office.

Certainly, there is no shortage of competition for Congressional seats, and incumbents pay a lot of attention to financing their re-election efforts. Congressmen after the November 1988 election still had $67 million in their campaign treasuries, an average of $154,000. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Chicago, House ways and means chairman and a leading advocate of the 51 percent raise, has one of the biggest campaign war chests of all.

Simon thinks tying federal pay to inflation might be worth trying, but we're not sure it would be wise to create such a vested interest among a group with so much power to affect inflation. Some winning formula probably will be developed, however; congressmen have their faults but they won't remain inept for long in their pursuit of more income.

Don't go easy on racketeers

Metro East and St. Louis bite state history reflects the value of a 1970 law known as RICO — the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act. Syndicate crime has been curbed to an extent since the enactment, and mobsters have found it more difficult to insulate themselves when ordering murders, arson and other violence.

A move afoot in the U.S. House

Judiciary Committee would pull RICO's teeth, on the basis that the law is too broad and gives prosecutors and citizens too much power to create legal problems for legitimate businesses.

We urge Congress to go slowly in "improving" a law that has had such a positive impact. And there should be full public discussion of any changes before they are put to a vote.

Dodging the true ETC facts

So many people have banded about the wrong facts while discussing the impact of moving the Educational Therapy Center in Granite City into the vacant Louisa Baer School in Madison that it's hard to know where to start in correcting them.

But forming a neighborhood committee to present a recommendation to the District 12 school board seems to be the correct way of appealing all sides.

The students who attend the Educational Therapy Centers in Granite City, Edwardsville and East Alton are behaviorally disrupted. They have to be grouped together in a special learning environment. But to consider them in the same vein as criminal elements is not only misleading, it's downright untrue.

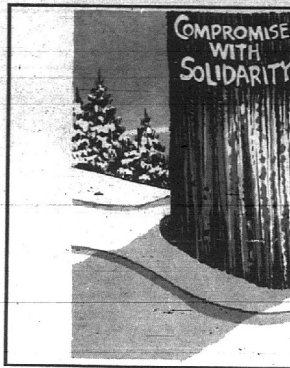

The Madison School Board is pushing hard to get ETC into the vacant school because of the revenue that would be produced, an estimated $20,000 annually. Many of the neighbors, on the other hand, are pushing just as hard against ETC, thinking that it will mean problems on their block. Some of these residents have admitted the ETC concept is a good one. They just don't want the program in their own back yard.

We encourage neighbors to conduct a fact-finding mission, to discover that the few police calls that have been made to the county's other ETCs are not an indictment of the program, but rather isolated incidents. ETC has offered an open invitation to these neighbors, and should be taken up on it.

ETC is the one outlet for saving some of these young people, who might otherwise be out on the street. There is no sure thing when it comes to neighborhood safety, but ETC has worked hard to come close at its other locations.

Once the truth is known, we feel the community of Madison will be proud to have a vital, contributing educational program in its midst.

Learn to care more about others

To the editor:

Novelist James Michener has called this "the ugly decade." More pointed, columnist William F. Buckley writes, "We wallow today in the cesspool of unrestrained greed."

One of America's wealthiest persons, industrialist H. Ross Perot, said we're going to have to learn to care more about each other or the nation will be on a permanent road of decline.

The weakest and poorest among us are less and less on our doorstep. We increasingly are segregating the nation on the basis of economics. What is true within the nation is true of the world.

If you compare defense expenditures as a percentage of national income, the United States at 5.8 percent is far ahead of Western European nations, Canada and Japan.

But when you compare what we are spending to help the world's desperate, we are behind those same nations. The Netherlands and Norway spend five times as much as we do on this, relative to national income.

We spend 1/5 of 1 percent of our national income on economic assistance to other countries. After World War II, under the Marshall Plan, we spent 2.9 percent of our national income, more than 10 times as much as we do today.

After World War II your senator could say to the Schmidts and the Scarios, "I'm helping your relatives."

Now the poor live in nations like Sudan, Bangladesh, Mauritania — and virtually no one asks our political leaders, "What are you doing to help my relatives?" The political appeal is gone for economic assistance.

Leaders too often say, "Look out for yourself. Don't worry about others." It is not said that bluntly, but that is the message.

And so we have learned to tolerate urban school systems that should shame us. Families desperate for jobs are not our neighbors, and so we pay little attention. They're on Indian reservations or in the inner city or in isolated rural pockets of poverty.

None of the 38 million Americans without any health insurance is likely to be in our circle of friends.

The caring and selflessness that our religious call for too often are lacking. Theologian Donald Shriver has written, "There are not many people in public life of whom one can say, 'They talk as though their faith is so much a part of them that they don't have to make public reference to the fact.'"

Public piety has replaced genuine concern. Ultimately we are one family, and when anyone in that family hurts, all of us hurt.

I hope we can become "a kinder, gentler nation" not just with our words but with our deeds.

U.S. SEN. PAUL SIMON

Homes on 27th Street take beating

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in regard to the bus situation on 27th Street.

I realize there was some disagreement when the buses were removed from the State Street route. Regardless of where the buses run, there is inconvenience for the riders. I rode street cars to work and they only ran on Madison Avenue, not in a residential area.

The homes on 27th Street are taking a beating, as is the street. Our alderman said the mayor has control of the bus routes. Well, Mr. Mayor, be as concerned about your residents as you are about Wal-Mart.

Twenty-seventh Street is a well-preserved neighborhood. My alderman said his house shakes when the bus goes down 26th. How would he like to have a bus in front of his house from 5 a.m. until 2:30 a.m. the next day, every half-hour?

Better yet, how would the mayor like being shaken out of bed at 1 a.m. by an empty bus going 40 miles per hour down a 20 mph street, seven days a week? The buses are empty after 6 every night.

Other cities have bus routes in commercial areas. If you are inconvenienced walking from Madison Avenue to your car, then make other arrangements.

I am hopeful the mayor can solve some needed problems before the election.

Cut the state preserver line

To the editor:

Regarding "Opinions" and the illustration that appeared Jan. 7, 1989, in the Belleville News-Democrat, "SS Illinois Giving a Life Preserver (state loan for basic services) to East St. Louis."

Item: Above said "SS Illinois" appears to be the skin of a shark (Jaws).

Problem: Why would a shark throw a life preserver to East St. Louis?

Solution: Cultural courtesy.

I have great difficulty in believing the great state of Illinois is looking out for the city of East St. Louis' best interest. And in this pictorial the small boat "East St. Louis" is taking down with it the great SS Illinois.

Such a catastrophe brings to mind what Vice President Dan Quayle has said, "Say a prayer," in this case a Catholic/Moslem prayer for East St. Louis. Then cut the line.

Letter from the Editor

IP tells you to f-f-freeze this winter

In this world of vicious circles, I stumbled across another one early this week when I came across an advisory that Illinois Power Co. included in my monthly utility bill. Save money, the company statement said, by turning your thermostat to 68 degrees in the daytime and 55 degrees at night. Fifty-five d-degrees? That's right. Two fives. The double nickel.

Does that strike you as incredible or are my glasses too fogged to see what I'm writing? How can anybody live with a 55-degree setting on their furnace? Do we all wear coats to bed? How many blankets does it take to ward off ice water in your veins?

They've got to be in cahoots with the doctors. Wake up each morning, let your eyebrows thaw, and head for the doctor's office.

Oh, I suppose there's some benefit. Your furnace will probably last an additional five years. But you'll die before it does.

And the kids won't want to risk climbing through the icicle storm to get into bed with you. Course, the entire family might consider going to bed together just to share the body heat.

Then there's always that neat feeling you get when you scrape frost off a glass pane with your fingernails. Except this time you'll also be able to do it in the hall closet.

You also have a convenient way of getting rid of that old furniture that's been clogging the basement for years: Burn it next to the bedside each night.

The hidden message in all this advice from Illinois Power is that the suggestion is just a suggestion. You can ignore it. You can always set your thermostat at 68 all day long and live in comfort. If not in poverty.

If that's the price I've got to pay for that fancy new nuclear plant up north, then I think I'll go back to coal fires and heated bricks at the foot of the bed.

At least that way I'll be warm.

What do you think about cigarette tax?

Last week Gov. Jim Thompson proposed raising the tax on cigarettes by 18 cents per pack (to 38 cents) and placing a 20 percent surcharge on other tobacco products. This would generate about $180 million yearly, of which $65 million would be earmarked for education, another $65 million for high-tech research and $50 million to fight drug abuse. What do you think about the governor's proposals?

Ken Braunmeier,
Granite City

"I'm in favor of it, I guess. Of course, it is another tax. (Smoking) is just another pleasure and you have to pay for what you want to enjoy."

Jim Riskovsky Jr.,
Madison

"I don't smoke, but from what I've read I consider it very unfair. There's already a 30 percent tax, including federal tax, on cigarettes."

Shawn Johnson,
Collinsville

"I'm a smoker and I think it sucks. They ought to be taxing the rich people more, not the poor people. They should raise the (income) tax on rich people and businesses to get more money."

of Avon, Linda Fussell of Fussell's State Farm Insurance, Debbie Davidson and Donna Schmid of Jan's Hairnails, and Todd Smith and Lula Frost of F.W. Woolworth, George Crews and Marie Symonek of Crews Realty Services, Gary and Leslie Goldberg of Charlie's Restaurant.

Jean Baker of Don Johnston Chrysler, Linda Schermer and Lori Schaffer of Schermer's Market, Nancy Somers of Thrifty Printing Inc., Remona and Caryn Sullivan of Ruth's Fashions, Ron Kelih, Michael Gebac and Carol Lavelle of Floral Essence, Inge Modric of Inge's Brides and Formal, and Coleen Roderick and Sheila York of Jerry's Cafeteria.

Appreciation was also extended to businesses that contributed to the festivities, including Kelly

Hogan Plumbing, Mercer Mortuary, Metro East Sanitary District, Prestige Printing, Super Print and Champion's Wedding and Party Store.

Olle Derr was presented a certificate for her years of service to the BPW.

President Dorothy Elmore welcomed the members and guests. Keynote speakers were Annellen Smith of Granite City, past president of the Illinois Federation of the BPW, and Betty Kelly of Alton, retention chairman of the IFBPW and first associate director of District XIV.

Smith traced the history of the federation from St. Louis in the early 1900s to the present, noting that BPW-USA is now considered "the voice of working women" and has more than 100,000 members in 58 federations.

Betty Kelly spoke on membership at the state, national and international levels and said the organization is a women helping women in the workplace.

A candlelight initiation service was conducted for new member Lori Urton.

Prizes for the evening, centerpieces donated by Champion's Wedding and Party Store, went to Linda Fussell, Donna Hogan and Carla Wright.

In the business session, Donna Hogan was named chairman of the nominating committee and Pat Thomas and Juanita Williams were chosen to serve on the committee. They will present a slate of officers at the March meeting.

It was announced that the spring district meeting will be held March 12 at Randy's Restaurant in Troy.

Businesses taking new look at local property tax rates

By Roger McGrath
Staff affiliate

ST. LOUIS — The business community once looked upon property taxes as a patriotic duty, a minor nuisance tax that financed local governments, says tax consultant Joe Sansone.

That no longer is the case, says Sansone, founder of Property Tax Research Co. At the request of corporations, Sansone's company reviews the value county assessors place on corporate real estate.

When the consultant's analysis indicates a property should carry a lower assessment, and therefore a lower tax bill, clients will appeal the assessor's appraisal of the property's value. Nor is the real estate tax any longer a nuisance tax.

"It is an incredibly large expense," approaching $150 billion nationwide, notes Pasquale Trozzolo, executive vice president of Tenenbaum-Hill Associates. Of the 94 appeals filed in St. Charles County last year, "almost all" were by businesses, says County Assessor Gene Zimmerman.

What explains why retailers, developers of office and industrial parks, and manufacturers increasingly cost-conscious in today's competitive marketplace — hire consultants such as St. Louis-based Property Tax Research and Kansas City-based Tenenbaum-Hill. Both are leaders in the tax consultant field, and both have offices in each other's hometown plus offices nationwide.

Tax consulting isn't new. In fact, many lawyers fashioned a career out of the field. Sansone first recognized the need for property tax consultants when he served as assessor for the City of St. Louis from 1965 to 1972.

This company was the first tax consulting firm in Missouri. At present, one-third of his staff of 150 is based in St. Louis. Wayne Tenenbaum and Ken Hill, founders of Tenenbaum-Hill, are alumni of Sansone's company.

Demand for tax consultants is steadily increasing, Sansone says. "It's growing every day; it just keeps growing."

One reason is reassessments are being made on a more regular basis.

"That creates more opportunities for tax consultants," says Trozzolo, who works in Tenenbaum-Hill's Kansas City office. The company annually reviews assessments on about 12,000 pieces of property nationwide.

In Illinois, Madison County reassesses one-quarter of the county's every year. Missouri's requirement that all property be reassessed every two years "is like an oil well" for the tax consultants, said Birch Mullins of Bear Properties, a St. Louis developer.

Challenging an assessment used to be a no-loss situation for the property owner, says Kenneth Morton, assessor for St. Louis County. A few years ago an appeal could yield a lower, but never a higher, assessment.

That is no longer the case. Currently, when an assessment is challenged, if the assessor can prove that a property deserves a higher appraisal and the tax consultant can't support a lower figure, the appeals board will OK the higher assessment.

"It ought to work that way," Morton says.

St. Louis stock forecast good

By David Calhoun Jones Jr.

The stock market enjoyed a good year in 1988. The Dow Jones industrial average was up 11.9 percent, Standard & Poor's 500 was up 12.4 percent and the St. Louis Common Stock Average was up 18.1 percent.

Despite the gloom-and-doom outlook of many soothsayers at the beginning of last year, it turned out that the only Bears with smiles on their faces at year end played football for Mike Ditka and Chicago. The total returns, price appreciation plus dividends paid in 1988, of the three averages were: the Dow, 16.6 percent; the S&P 500, 17.1 percent; and the St. Louis Average, 21.9 percent.

The St. Louis Common Stock Average, established in the early 1970s, currently consists of the stocks of the 24 St. Louis-based companies with annual sales of more than $100 million, plus the stocks of the two largest bank holding companies since inception, the St. Louis Average has generally outperformed Wall Street as well as the Dow industrials and the S&P 500.

While corporate earnings growth was good and the two arch enemies of the market, inflation and rising interest rates, weren't really a factor in 1988, a good part of the market's performance stemmed from takeover-related news or rumors. For example, without takeover targets Interco and Centene, the St. Louis Average would have advanced 10.6 percent instead of 18.1 percent. Takeover battles for the likes of Pillsbury, Firestone and RJR Nabisco boosted the Dow and S&P indexes.

The St. Louis Average reflected the overall attitude of the investing public. Burned by the 508-point drop in the Dow on Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987, the average investor either cashed in his chips or left his holdings alone. Consequently, cash previously invested in growth stocks was channeled into the takeover arena, which offered a much quicker return.

Despite its above-average return, the St. Louis Average saw the price of seven of its stocks decline during the year. Among these were the stocks of the area's two best-managed companies, American Airlines Co. and Emerson Electric Co., the leading bank holding company, Boatmen's Bancshares Inc., and the company some financial analysts say has the greatest growth potential among large chemical producers, Monsanto Co. These four stocks, whose fundamentals will be strong again in 1989, all will have good market performances this year.

The best-performing stock in the St. Louis Average in 1988 was that of Interco Inc. After adding special dividends and distributions in a direct result of a failed takeover effort, the Interco price had climbed 131 percent by the end of the year.

When takeover artists Mitchell and Steven Rales offered $74 a share for the conglomerate, Interco managers countered with a restructuring plan worth $76 a share. The Rales withdrew and the three averages were: the Dow, 16.6 percent; the S&P 500, 17.1 percent; and the St. Louis Average, 21.9 percent.

To finance the restructuring, Interco is selling off some assets, among them Ethan Allen and Londontown, and increasing its debt load. Over the short term, at least, the real winner has been the shareholder, who is now in a position to compete, must find a large partner. Merger rumors have, in fact, run up the stock price. With a book value around $30 a share, any takeover talks should be in the $40 area.

The new combination should be able to dominate local banking. Boatmen's stock declined when the merger was announced, but it now represents a sound, long-term holding.

The bank merger has led to speculation concerning St. Louis remaining large bank holding company, Mercantile. The scenario is that Mercantile, to compete, must find a large partner. Merger rumors have, in fact, run up the stock price. With a book value around $30 a share, any takeover talks should be in the $40 area.

Wetterau Inc.'s stock rose 41 percent last year as the company headed for its seventh has seen his worth more than double as a result of the financial skirmish.

The other local stock that more than doubled last year was Laclede Steel Co., which didn't need the aid of takeover-related news.

The stock rose 114 percent behind a three-for-two stock split and dividend increase, additional Wall Street interest in the stock, improved operating efficiencies and favorable quarterly earnings comparisons, plus a healthier steel industry.

When all the stats are in Laclede Steel will have earned more than $4 a share last year and its price will climb to about $4.75 this year.

Laclede Steel could be a future player in the takeover arena. Ivaco Ltd., a Canadian holding company, owns 51 percent of the stock. A five-year standstill agreement prevented Ivaco from increasing its ownership in Laclede Steel expired in October.

The stock of St. Louis' other major takeover participant, Centene, rose 98 percent last year. After rejecting a $34-a-share offer in January 1988 and termistraight year of increased earnings and its fifth straight of record earnings. Now the third-largest company in the voluntary food wholesaling industry, Wetterau appears to be well positioned to penetrate the industry even further; strategic acquisitions should continue.

The stock is an attractive long-term holding. Earnings per share for the year ending March 1989 should be in the area of $2.20 to $2.25, up from the $1.90 estimated for the current fiscal year.

With takeover activity expected to subside, the market will have a good year, but maybe not as strong as 1988. Inflation or interest rates will not be a factor; corporate earnings will advance, although not at as quickly as last year.

Should President George Bush's administration make some constructive efforts to reduce the federal deficit, this would attract the foreign investor to our markets, which would make these 1989 predictions seem conservative.

House seller wants exemption

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am 63 years old. About 15 years ago I bought my two-apartment house for $55,000. It is my principal residence. For the last two years I have not rented the other apartment and have had no income from it.

I am planning to sell my house for about $120,000 and buy a single-family home for about $140,000 in the same year. Am I eligible for the one-time exemption for persons 55 or older? Do I have to pay any taxes?

T.F.

Answer: Gosh, do you ever come to the right place for definitive, no-nonsense answer! How about "yes" and "no."

Frankly, there are more good reasons for not taking it. Which is easy enough to say since there aren't any reasons, good or otherwise, for claiming the exclusion.

The trouble is you've got two distinct pieces of property involved here even though they are under a common roof — your principal residence and a piece of income-producing property. If you had combined the other apartment as a part of your principal residence several years ago, of course there wouldn't be any tax consequence because you are replacing a $100,000 home for a higher-priced home. So, the two apartments have to be treated as two different entities — and both the base price and selling price will be down the middle to determine the tax liability, if any. You'll owe tax, but nothing staggering, on the rental unit, but you'll owe tax on the other unit that is your principal residence. So it would be a grave mistake to even think of using your exclusion on the one-time exemption here. For openers, you don't need it for the residence-apartment and you can't use it on the other one. Even if you could use it (you're going into a less-expensive retirement home, for instance), it would still be a mistake, in my opinion. You can use this exclusion — sheltering up to a $125,000 gain in the sale of your principal residence — only once in your life so why waste it sheltering a $20,000 or $30,000 profit? Once used, the exclusion is gone even if $100,000 of it, technically, is "unused."

No, hang onto it. You're still young enough to see the day when you may want to sell this $140,000 replacement home and get out of home ownership altogether.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am interested in a mathematical formula, or set of rules, to compare mortgages. I would like to know if there is some sort of common denominator to help evaluate different rates, different down payments and differing points in closing costs so that I can choose the mortgage best suited to my circumstances.

For example, one bank offers a 30-year mortgage at 10.5 percent with two points and another bank advertises the same term loan at 9.5 percent with four points. How does one compare?

Answer: In today's wonder world of computers I would hesitate to say that someone hasn't come up with a software program to make such comparisons. Unfortunately, I don't know of any such shortcut so it's still very much of a manual, step-by-step, procedure.

You'll have to start with a good amortization guide, which gives you tables for comparing monthly amounts for amortizing any size mortgage over any length of time and at different interest rates. These booklets can be picked up at many stationery stores and both Dugan Publishing and Financial Publishing Co. produce excellent ones.

You start with the up-front money, naturally the points, and, on a $50,000 mortgage we're talking about (in your example) the difference between two points ($1,000) or four points

About real estate

By Don Campbell

($2,000). The booklet will give you the monthly payment to amortize this loan (over 30 years) at 9.5 percent ($420.43), or at 10.5 percent ($457.37). Now, since the average American lives in his home about seven years, let's use that as our target date. After seven years you will have saved $3,102 in monthly payments — which has already more than offset the two-point difference in the origination fee. Also, after seven years (your booklet won't give you this information, so you'll have to work it out from the actual amortization schedule for both mortgages) and will have paid $5,019 in interest on the 10.5 percent mortgage, but only $4,501 in interest on the 9.5 percent mortgage — another $518 in savings. All of which, in this example, at least, makes the 9.5 percent mortgage by far the better bet in spite of the two-point origination fee.

How long you will stay in the house, of course, is the big factor in all of this. If you are only planning to live there a year or two, the 10.5 percent mortgage, because of the lower origination fee, would make it a better bet.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am 22 years old with a 5-month-old daughter, and we're flat broke. My husband's income meets the bills and that, literally, is it. How do I go about investing in real estate to have a positive cash flow?

We would like to buy a home of our own, but it goes without saying that we have no knowledge of real estate and how it works. I have seen promotions on television about investing without a down payment and even if you have a bad credit rating — which is currently what ours is turning into. Do you have any suggestions? At this point I am desperate.

Answer: For openers, you might begin confining your television viewing to late-night horror shows and forget the real estate pitches still cluttering the airwaves. They're about as much value to you, or to anyone, as a bad head cold. You've got your priorities backward. You should be thinking about acquiring your own home first, and then, at some much later date (the 22, remember, which is not exactly over the hill), you can consider using the equity in your home to branch out into investment real estate.

How do you work toward your own home? Well, forget the "no down payment" lure. You can sometimes — but rarely — pull it off if you've got a healthy yard of marketable assets or a solid credit rating going back many years.

You're going to have to start pinching pennies until you have accumulated approximately 5 percent of at least the selling price of a home in your price range and then start shopping for either a Federal Housing Administration or Veterans Administration foreclosure or, failing there, a home being sold conventionally on an "as is" basis where the seller is willing to carry back a substantial portion of the down payment himself. (That means he'll be financing, on a second note, a part of the purchase price.)

Once you get your home and have established a healthy equity in it, then come back and we'll talk about real estate investments.

Granite City sailor arrives home on USS Kennedy

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

"I'm here," said a voice on the telephone late one night last week.

"Thank God," answered Linda Lance.

The brief exchange between a mother and son signaled one of love, but also relief.

The caller was Aviation Structural Mechanic 2nd Class David Allen Millsap, U.S. Navy, who works on aircraft oxygen systems and ejection seats on board the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy.

Millsap, a 1984 graduate of Granite City High School, is the son of James and Linda Lance of Granite City, and Danny Millsap, also of Granite City.

Millsap, 22, arrived back at the Norfolk Naval Base on Feb. 1 from a six-month deployment aboard the USS Kennedy.

The carrier was with the Sixth Fleet on routine training exercises and operating in international waters in the Mediterranean Sea on Jan. 4 when two Navy F-14 Tomcat jet fighters from the Kennedy downed two Libyan MiG 23s off the coast of Libya. The incident sparked international debate.

Arriving home on the carrier also was Petty Officer 3rd Class Gregory D. Cann, 21, son of Paul and Marie Cann of Lakeview Drive, Pontoon Beach.

Mrs. Lance was concerned about her son and others on the ship at the time of the downing of the Libyan jet.

"I'm really worried about the Navy keeping them out there this time," she said when no reports were received about the carrier returning home on schedule.

When he called home, Millsap was waiting for a flight out to Whitty Island in the state of Washington, where he is permanently stationed between sea duty assignments.

He has been at Whitty Island since 1984.

Millsap is no stranger to sea duty. In the first two years of his Navy career he served on the USS Kittyhawk, making two six-month cruises.

"He's been out (on sea duty) four different times," his mother said. The most recent cruise and probably the most exciting was his second six-month deployment aboard the Kennedy.

After graduating in June 1984 from Granite City High School, Millsap left for basic training Oct. 1, 1984, at the Great Lakes Naval Base near Chicago.

His four-year enlistment was completed Oct. 1, 1988, but he decided to extend his service time for the length of the cruise, his mother said.

Millsap was selected as the Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron 130 "Zapper of the Month" in October in recognition of his "superior performance and loyal dedication to duty."

"He distinguished himself from a cadre of exceptional sailors through his commitment to excellence and demonstrated the unending enthusiasm he has displayed while serving in the Airframes Division, AME Branch," said Commander R.A. Pierce in a letter to the sailor's parents. The letter extended the commander's personal congratulations.

"His hard work has ensured that maintenance performed on our airplanes is of the highest and safest caliber. Your son's pride and professionalism have been in keeping with the 'Can Do' spirit of VAQ 130.

"It is with great pleasure that I inform you of your son's outstanding performance and selection as Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron 130's 'Zapper of the Month' for October 1988," he wrote.

Millsap also was presented a Good Conduct Award from the Navy for service completed through Oct. 1, 1988.

During the most recent cruise, which started last August, the carrier visited several Mediterranean ports.

On Christmas Eve, Millsap called the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Week of Pontoon Beach, where the family had gathered for a holiday get-together, Mrs. Lance said.

"At that time, he said he was looking forward to getting home and was making plans to attend college in the near future," his mother said.

Millsap was last home in June 1988.

Granite City (Ill.) Press-Record, Thursday, February 9, 1989 — 1C

Finding the right words that may persuade you to say 'Yes'

Newspapers aren't gods; they can't — and shouldn't try to — control events.

The Hearst chain was blamed for nudging the United States into the Spanish-American War; publishers and editors don't always know what is best.

Newspapers nevertheless try to present the facts on a particular topic, helping citizens make informed decisions.

It's essential in a democracy: the idea of journalists reporting and advising was strongly backed by such founding fathers as Thomas Jefferson.

PERSUASION remains an art, not a science. There is no sure-fire way to do it.

But how sweet it is when you pour your heart out for a cause and the public responds overwhelmingly, such as the 4-to-1 margin by which Granite Citizens decided to construct a unique ice skating rink in Wilson Park.

Barry Loman and I were talking a few days ago about another topic and he recalled the ice rink election; he was park president at the time and I co-chaired the public information part of the campaign.

THE ICE RINK was important because it helped define Granite City as a fine residential area, not just a place handy to several steel mills.

One of the campaign's selling points was a skate-equipped family group around an open fire at the park, roasting hot dogs and marshmallows in between excursions around the covered rink.

It never materialized due to liability problems but I would like to see a home area seriously considered; surely the insurance aspect could be solved.

NOT ALL CAMPAIGNS involve voting; at various times this newspaper sought to rid the community of big-scale gambling, which former editor Corky Townsend correctly reasoned was capable of corrupting local and county government.

One such effort involved a building on Broadway. We pointed out it was near the Venice library and the Teen Town, where young people walked daily; near a Methodist Church, where the congregation regularly gathered; and near the City Hall, where citizens transacted business each day.

Armed mobsters were engaged in illegal activities, we pointed out. Even a priest whose religion does not consider gambling evil gave me helpful quotes denouncing the enterprise.

THAT CRUSADE succeeded. Gradually, over the years, we helped change the Quad City area and Madison County from rough-and-tumble lawlessness into towns where families could safely raise their children.

We didn't claim to have cornered the market on goodness; we left such considerations to the many churches with which this community is blessed.

Our approach was not to try to dictate the moral standard but to speak out for law enforcement — seeking a level of adherence to the law in which good government was not only possible but probable.

LOGICAL COMPILING and presenting of evidence to an irrefutable degree and quantity is the method used by lawyers in courts to sway jurors, and newspapers attempt a similar process when outlining issues of importance to the public.

This is what the Press-Record

Journal, East St. Louis News Journal and Cahokia-Dupo Journal have been trying to do in discussing the "pro" and "con" of the Feb. 28 Metro East Sanitary District referendum. Public safety is a key issue once again.

The facts seem to be clear: It's easy to conclude that people would be making a tragic mistake if they fail to support the flood protection project. But it is up to the voters.

AS NOTED, journalists should not and cannot tell people what they have to do. But within the proper limits, the three newspapers want and need to persuade their readers to vote — and to vote "Yes" — Feb. 28.

Most of the anti-flooding work is to be paid for by Uncle Sam, but that help will disappear if voters don't give their approval now. The work is essential to save lives and to save property from the Mississippi River, from surface water and from underground water.

The federal government has said flatly that the only alternative is to declare our floodplain "unprotected." This would mean home mortgages could not be obtained, destroying the value that each family has earned by investing in its home.

ECONOMIC CHAOS would result, killing off jobs and prosperity. Not everywhere, but in the below-the-bluffs region of western Madison and St. Clair counties — the bottomland on which we live.

The "smart move," some may tell you, is to reject the plan and just sit tight; even some officials are trying to shoot that kind of angle, but I think they are terribly misguided.

It would be like sitting tight on top of Mount St. Helens just before it erupted.

Florida panhandle has some of America's best beaches

By Jean L. Satterthwaite
Staff affiliate

Florida's panhandle is a unique part of the Sunshine State. Only a slender piece of land along the Gulf Coast holds the panhandle together as Florida meanders under Georgia and Alabama.

The panhandle is not part of the seasonal system that dominates the rest of the state. While Miami Beach licks its off-season wounds, the panhandle is in full swing during the summer months, ready to offer its sun to people locked into school schedules.

More importantly for St. Louis residents, Florida's panhandle is not that far away. About 650 miles separate St. Louis from Florida's soft, powdery beaches and salt water. And it is not expensive to go to the panhandle, or at least it does not have to be.

Stretching from Pensacola near the Alabama border southeast to Port St. Joe, the Florida panhandle offers everything from exclusive resorts to national motel chains to inexpensive campgrounds.

Finding a place to stay may require advance reservations. One panhandle motel manager warned that her facility stayed full throughout the summer.

The most obvious source of fun is the blue-green water of the Gulf of Mexico. Western Florida boasts some of the best beaches in the United States.

Local residents claim the beaches actually come out of a river. They say the Apalachicola River system moves the white, 98-percent quartz sand downstream to produce the rolling dunes and powder-soft beaches.

The best known and most accessible beaches are at Gulf Islands National Seashore, Pensacola, Fort Walton and Panama City.

Several islands offshore, including Dog Island near Apalachicola and Shell Island off Panama City, are accessible only by boat, but they are worth the extra effort. Regular shell-hunting excursion boats leave from the docks at Captain Anderson's Restaurant on the waterfront in Panama City.

Most local docks have advertisements for chartered fishing boats and sailboats. Sailboat rentals range from full-sized yachts that leave from marinas, down to little catamarans at local beaches.

Campgrounds and most marinas have ramp facilities to launch your own boat, usually for a small fee.

Many divers have discovered the clear water of the gulf for various amphibious activities. The look at Port St. Joe (shaped somewhat like Cape Cod) is particularly noted for its clear water and is easily accessible to snorkelers.

After a day of water fun the gulf also offers good eating. One of the best places to eat with reasonable prices is Tapizans on Highway 98 in Destin. The chef is likely to come to your table to see if you are enjoying the fine sauces and locally harvested seafood. Dinner entrees range from $10 to $15.

A favorite in Pensacola is the Oyster Bars at 708 Navy Blvd. The look at Port St. Joe (shaped somewhat like Cape Cod) is particularly noted for its clear water and is easily accessible to snorkelers.

Excellent food and service can be found at the Gibson Inn in downtown Apalachicola. The menu there generally offers simple steaks and seafood served in an old Florida style dining room.

Residents staunchly call Pensacola the oldest city in the United States because it was founded in 1599, six years before the founding of St. Augustine, which is most commonly known for that honor. The catch is that the original settlement at Pensacola lasted only two years.

An old section of Pensacola is preserved and sites like old houses and the Museum of Commerce are open for public viewing. Out in the bays, three forts guard the sea entrance to Pensacola. Both Fort Pickens on the western end of Santa Rosa Island, and Fort Barrancas at Pensacola Naval Air Station, are open to the public.

History buffs also can enjoy the Naval Aviation Museum located at the Naval Air Station. Open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except for holidays, the museum displays full-sized aircraft showing the history of naval aviation, from the first primitive attempts at flight to modern space craft.

Panama City is making an effort to restore parks and older buildings. The mini-mall makes use of old commercial buildings to house several restaurants, most notably the Cheese Barn, which has a lunch menu of fine deli sandwiches.

About 25 miles to the southeast, Apalachicola is starting to revitalize its downtown area. The 1907 vintage Gibson Inn overlooks the central part of the town where small gift and art galleries are popping up.

For more information about Pensacola, call 305-874-1234; for Apalachicola, (904) 658-9419.

Alps skiing not necessarily Swiss, German or Austrian vacation draw

By Ted Heck
Staff affiliate

While many Americans think the Alps are Swiss, Austrian or German, the sunny side of the mountain range is in Italy and offers some of the best skiing terrain in Europe. Along with providing exciting apres-ski possibilities, the names of destinations in the Italian Alps fall much more softly on ears.

Bormio and Cervinia are among the more than 100 Italian resorts open to skiers who want ambience with a different accent. They also are available in packaged tours or in do-it-yourself adventures.

Bormio is in the Rhaetian Alps, 35 miles due east of St.

Moritz and 130 miles northeast of Milan. The road to Bormio, a four-hour drive from Milan's Malpensa airport, passes semi-tropical Lake Como.

The skiing is as challenging as skiers care to make it, taking place on wide-open snowfields draped on 10,000-foot Monte Vallecchia.

For apres-ski adventure there is an indoor thermal pool, with a good sauna, massage rooms and mud baths. Shops stay open until 7 p.m. in the old part of town, offering bargains in leather, clothing and ski equipment. A boutique faces a blacksmith shop and a medieval tower helps to punctuate restaurants and discos in the village, which dates back to Roman times.

Accommodations range from rooms in modest boarding houses, called pensions, to suites in the Palace, one of the most regal hotels in the area.

The village of Cervinia, northwest of Milan, shares the Matterhorn with Zermatt, Switzerland.

Cervinia does not have the charm of Bormio, it only dates from the 20th century, but skiing there is a dream.

From the top of Plateau Rosa there is a recommended day trip across the border to Zermatt for lunch and back to Cervinia. The route is a glacier, several miles wide and long, that is a promenade of snow, deceptively flat-looking, but letting skiers build up speed.

Minnesota adds six bike trails

Minnesota has added more bike trails for the cycling enthusiast.

Six trails have been developed by the Department of Natural Resources; two additional paths were installed by southern communities. The trails were constructed on old railroad beds. They are level and were constructed with asphalt or crushed limestone.

The 19-mile Cannon Valley Trail follows the Cannon River between Red Wing and Cannon

Falls and winds through a landscape of rocky cliffs, steep wooded slopes, farmland, hardwood forests, pastures and marshland.

Cyclists can enjoy the Sakatah Singing Hills between Mankato and Faribault, the Douglas Trail between Rochester and Pine Island, and the Root River Trail at Lanesboro.

With spring approaching, cycling enthusiasts may want to begin planning an on-wheels vacation.

Descriptions of each trail are in the new "Explore Minnesota Biking" brochure published by the Minnesota Office of Tourism.

The brochure also includes a list of six state parks with biking trails, including Itasca State Park, which has 17 miles of bike paths. The brochure also includes information about ordering maps and a list of bike rental businesses.

For a copy of this brochure call 800-328-1461.

Cavaness pours in 27 in title win

By Dave Whaley

GRANITE CITY — John Hutchings says he thinks "girls" hate him sometimes. He gets angry when things don't go well, and he thinks they could be some anger directed back at him.

But there was no anger Wednesday night at Memorial Gymnasium. There was only joy in the case of Priscilla Meyenburg — after the Lady Warriors captured the Granite City Class AA Regional with an exciting 54-46 win over the East St. Louis Flyers.

The Lady Warriors (10-12) travel to Highland on Monday to face Jerseyville (35-1) in the sectional semifinals. That game will immediately follow a 6:30 game between the Belleville East and Collinsville Regional winners to be determined tonight.

"I know they think I hate them sometimes," said Hutchings after watching his team cut player, scored 19 points, but picked up her third foul with 22 seconds left in the first half, then her fourth midway through the third quarter. She eventually fouled out with eight seconds left. Cavaness picked up her fourth foul with 31 seconds left in the third quarter, but hung around long enough for the celebration.

The Flyersettes had made a habit of beating the Lady Warriors with fourth-quarter rallies in this weekend's sectional.

As expected, it was Jennifer Cavaness who led the Lady Warriors to the promised land. The 6-2 junior center was magnificent in the second half, scoring 19 of her game-high 27 points as Granite City claimed its first girls regional title. Cavaness also pulled down 17 rebounds.

"We know that when we get the ball to Jennifer, there are very few who can stop her," said Hutchings. "And it helped when they moved (Kim) Gresham outside. Gresham, the Flyersettes' star

Cahokia takes team mat regional

CAHOKIA — They knew they were battling long odds, but the Warrior wrestlers made the unbeaten Cahokia team mat regional work.

The Comanches moved to 23-0 with a 42-23 win over Granite City in the Cahokia Team Regional final on Tuesday, ending the Warriors' team season at 23-10. The Comanches will compete in the Granite City Team Sectional on Feb. 21. The Warriors trailed only 23-22 heading into the 160 match, but Cahokia swept the final four bouts.

"It's a real credit to the kids to compete so well against the 5th-ranked team in the state," said Warrior coach Mike Garland. "And we got a couple of great wins from Doug Edwards at 140 and Charles Stout at 152."

Stout, a sophomore, won twice on the night, beating O'Fallon's Ben Eskra in the Warriors' 32-30 win over the Panthers in the semifinals. Eskra was the runner-up in the individual regional.

The Warriors juggled their lineup a bit against O'Fallon and picked up valuable wins in the middle weight classes, where they have been weakest all year. Scott Wilson (135) and Scott picked up victories. Larry Hahne wrapped up the win with a pin of Darnell Williams at 43 seconds of the 188-pound match.

Brent Davis picked up two more wins to raise his career record to 141-19, tying Dean Perkins (1979-82) for the Granite City record for most wins in a career. Davis, 41-1 this year, is second wins away from the school record for most wins in a season, which he should accomplish in this weekend's sectional.

"O'Fallon looked pretty strong on paper, but as Brent said, we don't wrestle on paper," Garland said. "It couldn't be prouder of these kids. It was the old Granite City Warrior spirit."

Davis (125), Todd Hutchinson (112) and Bryan Pritchett (119) will compete in this weekend's Granite City Sectional, with sessions at 6 p.m. Friday, and noon

Cage teams hit the road

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

It's a weekend on the road for all three local boys basketball teams.

The Granite City Warriors (7-14) try to break an 18-game conference losing streak at Belleville West on Friday at 8 p.m. This could be the last good shot at a conference win for an ongoing Warrior coach Don Deterding. The Warriors, 0-7 in SWC play this year, have league games left at East St. Louis and at home against Alton.

The Maroons (2-5, 11-1), however, are coming off a big 84-49 win at Alton, a game that might have knocked the Redbirds out of the conference title picture. West is led by guard Dan Bieglar, averaging 16.2 points per game. Bieglar scored 24 points in the Maroons' 61-45 win at Granite City on Jan. 6. Jeff Hahne and Mike Hall are also in double figures for the Maroons, who may be looking ahead to Saturday's game against Belleville Alton.

The Warriors are paced by senior Mike Wilkinson (13.1 points), although he was shut out in Friday's 70-44 loss at Collinsville. Matt Cook (11.7) and John VanBuskirk (10.8) are also in double figures. Cook is still among the area leaders in three-pointers, having made 89 of 180 (38.3 percent).

The Venice Red Devils (17-4) make a long ride to Cairo for an 8 p.m. game Friday against the Pilots. Cairo was the only Class AA team to beat the Devils in 1987, the year Venice won the state championship.

The Devils will then face Sparta at BAC at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the first half of a high school college double-header. Following that game, BAC will take on Lincoln Trail. BAC features Wilfred Wigfall, a member of the Devils' 1987 state champions. Lincoln Trail is coached by former GCC coach and athletic director Terry Collins. Venice beat Sparta 35-41 at the Sparta Tournament last month.

Venice is led by a terrific trio of senior forwards—Roosea King (21 points, 11.8 rebounds) and Darryl Jackson (20 points, 6.4 rebounds) and sophomore guard Erwin Claggett (14 points). Claggett is a 50 percent shooter (33 of 66) from three-point range and the Devils are shooting 49 percent as a team from that distance.

SI suits up again

It's here. Arriving home from work on Monday, I found my latest copy of Sports Illustrated had arrived in the mail. Kathy Ireland is on the cover.

Kathy didn't win the latest LPGA tournament. Nor did she fare too well in the Australian Open. In fact, she probably couldn't win a game maybe not even a point — from Scotty Graf. But there she is on the cover, and she will be remembered for that cover much longer than recent cover subjects like Jerry Rice, Kareem Abdul Jabbar and Mario Lemieux.

You know it's Sports Illustrated's annual swimsuit issue, and the folks at SI have outdone themselves this year. Of course, they do that every year, if you read the letters to the editor, which come streaming in a few weeks after the issue is put to bed.

Warrior skaters face Plager, Parkway North in playoffs

Executive sports editor

The hockey Warriors will be fighting the competitive spirit of Barclay Plager this weekend.

Granite City, which finished the regular season at 9-12, will take on Parkway North in the first round of the Mid States Club Hockey Association playoffs this weekend. North features Kevin Plager, the son of the late Blues defenseman who died just a year ago this week.

"He's a pretty good player," said Warrior coach Garry Henson. "I coached him and his linemates in a game the other night and they work very well together. I don't really think we have a very good chance."

The Warriors did get some good news Tuesday when Henson learned that defenseman John Culbert will be eligible for the playoffs. It was originally feared that Culbert hadn't accumulated enough units in the first semester and he sat out the last three regular-season games, all of which Granite City lost. But he was right at 2.25 units for five courses, and put him just above the cutoff line.

"That helps a little," said Henson, who will still be without Freshman forward Mike Naveau because of grades. "We'll stick with our top players and see how well we can do."

John Rains will be in goal for the two-game series, which starts with an 8 p.m. game Saturday at South County. The second game is at 8:45 p.m. Monday at North County. It's a total points series, meaning that if one team wins both games or gets a win and a tie, that team wins the series. If the series splits, they play a 10-minute mini-game immediately following the second game. If that is a tie, the teams then go to sudden death.

Granite City will stick with a lineup of Rains, Matt Schneke, Jim Roberson, Jim Hawkins, Culbert, Jason Bucatch, John Galinski, Nathan Weaver, Mike Parkinson and Chris Burns. Bill Gravel and Chad St. Peters will also be available for a third line if needed. Schneke finished the regular season with 33 goals.

The Warriors upset Parkway West in the first round last year using freshman Robbie Nolan in goal along with Roberson, Schneke, Culbert, Todd Richley, Matt Krevich, Tommy Brown and Rich Grogan.

"That group was probably a little better skating group than this one," said Henson. "The playoffs start Friday with one-game wild card matches. Webster plays Parkway West, Clayton plays McCluer North, Parkway South plays St. Mary's and Country Day plays Melville.

The winners of those games meet the four division champions in the next round in two-game series over the weekend. The Webster-Parkway West winner plays DeMet. Clayton-McCluer North plays Parkway Central. Parkway South-St. Mary's plays Fox, and Country Day-Melville plays Hazelwood Central.

In other two-game series this weekend, Kirkwood plays Chamade, CBC plays SLH and John Burroughs plays Lindbergh. Quarterfinals will be Feb. 18-20. Should Granite City win its first series, the Warriors would take on the winner from among the Parkway Central/Clayton/McCluer North group.

The semifinals will then be Feb. 24-25 at either Affton or with the third-place game and the title game at the Arena on March 1 at 5:45 and 8 p.m.

"DeMet has to be the favorite from the upper bracket," said Henson. "And I think Country Day could come out of the wild card bracket and go to the finals. They have a lot of good players."

In the past two years, and it eerily appeared to be possible again Wednesday.

The Lady Warriors shot out to a 14-2 lead after one quarter and clung to a 23-23 lead at half time. The Flyers tied it twice and went ahead 33-31 in the third quarter on Gresham's basket off an inbound play. But Cavanaugh's shot, which she followed with a layup, gave Granite City the lead for good.

Gresham picked up her fourth foul moments later and the Lady Warriors led 41-39 after three quarters. Cavanaugh followed her own shot with 3-5 free to make it 49-40, but things began to get sticky after that.

Rolanda Frazier scored, the Anita Bazile and Frazier again converted after Granite City turnovers to make it 49-46 with 1:40 left.

"I thought 'Here we go again,'" said Hutchings. "I thought it was self-destruct time. But we finally did the things we are capable of doing. We had to spread out and make them come to us."

there," Hutchings said. "I knew we had it then."

Kim Pawlak missed a free throw, but the Flyers missed three shots at the other end before Pawlak put the nail in the East Side coffin with two free throws with eight seconds left.

"Kim is still having trouble with that ankle," said Hutchings. "If she's healthy, I really don't think East Side has a chance. Gresham is really the only player they have."

"We had to play doggone good to get it. And we really tried hard. They have the day off (Thursday). This is one for them to enjoy."

Cavanaugh and Co. would have no trouble doing that.

In Class A regional action, the Madison Trojans were eliminated Wednesday with a 60-55 overtime defeat to Alton Marquette in the Marquette Regional semifinals. Lisa Fair had 19 points for the Lady Explorers (15-8) who advance to tonight's regional title game against Brussels (14-12), a 45-37 winner over Columbia. LaGloria Marshall led the Trojans (who finished at 6-10), with 17 points.

Swimsuit

responding to the swimsuit issue are almost as entertaining as the issue itself. In fact, SI might be wise to consider a special issue featuring letters to the editor concerning this annual escape from winter. Look for the letters starting with, oh, the Feb. 20 edition.

Speaking of special issues, this year's swimsuit edition is exactly that. The previous 25 had all been regular weekly issues of the magazine, which was founded in 1955. SI editors concocted the swimsuit edition in 1964 to fill the void left by the end of the football season.

So this year marks the 25th anniversary. And SI has produced a 298-page issue with as much effort usually reserved for the baseball or football preview editions, or even an Olympic preview edition. There are features on each of the models who have graced the cover in the past 25 years, including one (Ann Simonion) who is now a staunch feminist. One of her crusades is to stamp out SI's swimsuit issue. Interesting.

No one will be able to use the excuse this year that they are looking through the issue to catch the latest college basketball or NHL news. This issue is devoted entirely to swimsuits, although there is, one story on the culture of Mexico, the site of this year's photo sessions.

It's a dazzling issue, as you might expect — although issues in the past year which featured photographs of Florence Griffith-Joyner were almost as good for me.

It's also one of SI's biggest ever. Some stores, including the 7-11 in Granite City, have set up special racks just for this. The magazine consistently sells more advertising for this issue than any other and has helped launch careers for several models, most notably Cheryl Tiegs and Christie Brinkley. "The Stranger" Joel Brinkley.

Those two share the swimsuit edition record along with Elle MacPherson with three covers apiece. Tiegs was the cover girl in 1970, 1975 and 1983. Brinkley was featured from 1978-81 and MacPherson was on the cover in 1986-88. Three covers is still far short of the cover appearances by Abdul-Jabbar and Muhammad Ali.

Ireland has appeared in several swimsuit editions in this decade, but is making her first cover appearance this year. Ironically, there is only one additional photo of her inside.

Admittedly, there have been some pretty provocative photos in past editions. But there really isn't anything any bolder in this year's issue. Angry parents who

Cougars' post-season chances hurt by loss

By Al Barnes

Correspondent

A 66-62 loss at Wisconsin-Parkside on Monday might have cost the SIUE Cougars a bid in the NCAA Division II Great Lakes Regional.

SIUE was 16-6 heading into Wednesday's game in Lebanon against McKendree College. The Cougars overhauled Kentucky State 14-6 on Saturday at home before suffering the close defeat on Monday in Racine, Wis. Larry Graham's team had been ranked seventh in the Division II polls and appeared a leadpipe cinch to claim its third post-season bid in five years.

The lopsided win over Kentucky State was the Cougars' 15th home win in a row and saw Frankie Williams become the eighth player in school history to score 1,000 points.

The Cougars shot out to a 21-7 lead and led 58-18 at halftime. They shot 64 percent from the field in the opening 20 minutes. SIUE finished with shooting 59 percent and the 114 points was a season-high.

Tim Brown led the Cougars with 21 points. Phil Wahl added 17. Antone Gallishaw had 15 (and 16 rebounds) and Danny Biedscheid had 14.

The loss to Parkside was a disappointment in that the Cougars had beaten the Rangers earlier in the year. Parkside slowed the pace to a crawl and got the upset. A three-pointer by Edgar Wilson with 2:18 left put the Cougars ahead 58-57, but Andy Schmidtman hit a three-pointer of his own and made four straight free throws in the final 30 seconds to seal the win.

Schmidtman led all scorers with 21 points while Tim Brown paced SIUE with 20. Parkside connected on seven three-pointers in the first half to take a 39-32 lead.

The Cougars host Park College of Kansas City on Friday and end the home season with a game against Quincy College on Saturday.

tance. Deves Parram has made 9 of 12 treys. The Devils are shooting 61.8 as a team, led by King (72.1 percent), Jackson (66.1), Farram (58.7), John White (58.0), Claggett (56.9) and Herb Buford (56.7). But they are shooting only 62.6 from the free-throw line.

The Madison Trojans (3-15) have another tough one as they travel to Belleville East (7-12) for an 8 p.m. game Saturday. The Trojans knocked off East St. Louis 55-41 on Friday and are led by Bernell Love (13.6 points).

The Trojans are paced by senior guard Jessie Leonard (16.7 points) and sophomore forward Federico Walker (10.0 points).
